PRIMARY PRACTICES

Litigation

Complex Commercial Litigation

Business Law

Jennifer Kirby represents businesses, individuals, and insurers in complex litigation, dispute resolution, and risk-sensitive legal matters. Licensed in California and Hawaii, Jen brings a practical, business-minded approach to matters involving complex commercial litigation, product liability, employment-related issues, and contract disputes.

Jen's practice is shaped by both law firm litigation experience and prior in-house counsel experience. She is experienced in all phases of litigation, including arguing substantive and dispositive motions, taking and defending depositions, representing clients in mediations and settlement negotiations, and preparing cases for trial. Her in-house background includes advising executive leadership and cross-functional business teams on enterprise risk management, commercial transactions, regulatory compliance, employment matters, and operational risk.

Jen earned her J.D. from the University of California, Davis School of Law and completed her undergraduate degree in from the University of California, Berkeley.
