Construction

Sophia Dasko is a paralegal with Hahn Loeser's Litigation and Construction Practice Areas in the firm's Cleveland office.

As a Department Assistant at Case Western Reserve University School of Law, Sophia supported a team of 40 attorneys and law professors in a fast-paced academic and legal environment. She has become adept at managing shared administrative systems, including electronic records, financial and billing platforms, and reporting tools, with a strong focus on maintaining data integrity to ensure accurate and consistent reporting.

Sophia has planned and executed a wide range of events, from internal training to external conferences and networking receptions.

She is also experienced in drafting and proofreading formal reports, publications, and client- and court-facing documents, tracking deadlines, anticipating risks and ensuring compliance through the careful handling of confidential records.
